The generous hearts of those who came before us weave many threads in the tapestry of our Jewish community’s vibrant history. Their legacy, embodied in acts of kindness and support, continues to shape and inspire us.

Nowhere is this more evident than in the story of the Jewish Foundation of Manitoba, whose roots stretch back to 1964, when 119 visionaries took bold steps to cement the future of Jewish culture in Manitoba.

At its core, philanthropy is a belief that we are all interconnected, bound by a responsibility to uplift and support one another. The Foundation’s founding donors embraced this, along with everyone who has contributed since, recognizing that the strength of a community lies in its ability to care for its members. This generosity laid the groundwork for a legacy of compassion and giving spanning generations.

As beneficiaries of their foresight and generosity, we inherit the fruits of their labour and the responsibility to carry their torch forward. The community we enjoy today is the product of their dedication and vision. Still, it is also a call to action, a reminder that our work is far from done.

In the next four pages you will find two families who highlight these exact sentiments. Bubbes, zaidas, mothers and daughters, fathers and sons, all passing on the same tradition of giving that was taught to them.

So, let us embrace the legacy of philanthropy, honour the efforts of those who paved the way, and commit ourselves to creating a brighter future for generations to come.

SPANNING GENERATIONS

As my ancestors planted
for me before I was born,
so do I plant for those who will come after me.

-Talmud

The Jewish Foundation of Manitoba acknowledges that our organization benefits from being situated on the original lands of the Anishinaabeg, Cree, Oji-Cree, Dakota, and Dene peoples and on the homeland of the Métis Nation.
This land is now known as Treaty One Territory.

GORDON PULLAN

Gordon Pullan's deep connection to and passion for our Jewish community left him concerned about its future. Growing up and into adulthood, he constantly recognized the importance of his generation in building a solid foundation to ensure the community's strength for years to come.

"I saw a challenge and a concern," Pullan says. "As dedicated as I am to the continuity of our Jewish population, I wondered, will the next generation continue this?"

The JFM is dedicated to maintaining a strong Jewish community in Winnipeg across generations, and the broad support from donors reflects a shared commitment to this cause. Pullan, a long-time supporter and volunteer, is no different in his desire for a stable, strong, and proud Jewish community.

First elected to the JFM Board of Directors in 1979, and in the 45 years since, Gordon has lent his time and support in a myriad of ways, as a board member, president, and now as a governor.

Pullan emphasizes that philanthropy is crucial for the continuity and longevity of the Jewish community. In addition, we must remember who we are. "It is important to be able to say 'yes, I am Jewish' and to be proud saying it."

In 1998, he signed the Endowment Book of Life, committing to leave his legacy in our community. In his story, he writes of his awareness that the generations who follow him may not share the same concerns about the community's future.

His sentiments ring as true today as they have ever been:

As I think about our situation in the Jewish community in the late summer of 1998, I realize what a phenomenal effort the generation preceding mine as well as my own, have invested in "the future".

The generation prior to mine had the goal of ensuring that the Jews of the Diaspora survive as a people.

The concern of my generation is one of continuity. My thinking is that the next generation will have the same concern and goal as we today have. The past two generations have concentrated on building a foundation consisting of the organizations and facilities to meet the needs not only of today but also of the tomorrows. In effect, what has been provided are the tools. How they are used will depend upon those who will follow.

Every generation has the concern that the next one will not have the same dedication and make the same efforts, but somehow there are those who follow who are willing to pick up where those who preceded have left off and carry on doing what is necessary to meet the challenges and needs of the day.

And so, in this year, 1998 (5758), I record this message for whoever may look at it - in "the future".

HEATHER PULLAN

Heather Pullan, one of Gordon's children, is part of the generation he sought to protect and nurture. When talking about whether she feels or sees the same concern as her father, she gives a very telling answer.

"Because of the infrastructure that my father, and many like him, created, I'm able to see that the continuity and future of the community is in good hands," says Pullan. "I had the privilege of growing up in this community and seeing its stability first-hand."

A dedicated JFM volunteer, she has served on the JFM Board of Directors and contributed to numerous committees. She understands the critical role of philanthropy and the importance of building endowments.

"The Foundation is the vehicle for the future," she says. "There are many community endeavours invested in the future, and they are doing great things; the Foundation is the one whose sole purpose is to gather and distribute specifically with an eye on the future."

She and her husband, Tom Frohlinger, have also passed on the importance of philanthropy and a sustained community for future generations to their three children. Now in their late 20s and early 30s, all three of their children have a Bar/Bat Mitzvah Fund at the JFM and engage in philanthropy in their own way.

"I really believe that generosity inspires generosity," says Becky Frohlinger, Pullan's youngest daughter. "When you see someone like a mother or a Zaida, in my case both, who are so involved in philanthropy and community, it teaches not only to be involved but also how to be involved."

Pullan understands that people find their philanthropic motivations differently and at their own pace. Once an individual finds what strikes a chord with them, it is easy to see giving back to the community as both a privilege and an opportunity. That concept creates engagement.

"Sometimes the awareness comes to people earlier, sometimes it comes to them later, and I suppose to some not at all," she says. "But the awareness of the passage of time, the need for strength in the future, and the fact that you may not be in that future is what struck a chord with me."

CHLOË MCCOMB

Chloë McComb sees the opportunity to give back to the community as a privilege and an honour, with her involvement on the Women's Endowment Fund Grants committee as something she can truly be proud of.

"I'm a teacher at an all-girls school," says McComb. "And being able to join this committee and become privy to all the amazing programs it helps went hand in hand. Walking away from those meetings, knowing you're giving the grant recipients options to fulfil their projects, it's just a great feeling."

Her introduction to the Foundation came many years ago, as her mother-in-law, Karyn Lazareck, was already deeply involved with the JFM. Ten years ago, after then-CEO Marsha Cowan contacted her about joining the committee, marked her first year volunteering at the JFM.

Now, Chloë passes that same torch and community-forward mindset to her children. From one generation to the next, their family continues to be involved as volunteers at the JFM and philanthropists in the community.

"Since entering this community of philanthropists, I have often been reminded of the importance of giving back, not only in my own life but also in my children's lives," she says. "My daughter and boys are learning the value of giving back through our conversations about tzedakah."

This philanthropic focus has already begun to take root in her children. Chloë notes with pride how they independently recognize and act upon opportunities to give back. A recent example is their decision to allocate a portion of their upcoming B'nai Mitzvah gifts to the Jordan Lazareck Special Needs Fund, a choice made without prompting from their mother or their Bubbe, Karyn.

"Sometimes just by doing, by setting an example, that's what they see as normal," says McComb. "You can't tell someone to do something if you're not doing it."

Chloë's journey with the JFM is not just a personal endeavour but a family tradition that highlights the importance of philanthropy and community support across three generations.

"As my children and Karyn's grandchildren get older, I'm sure they will come to appreciate the true impact and importance of support systems for the community, like the Women's Endowment Fund," says McComb. "I am confident that this legacy of giving will carry on for generations."

KARYN LAZARECK

Karyn Lazareck has always been motivated by making the community a better place for everyone, focusing on building for the future.

Thirty years ago, along with a group of like-minded women, she helped pioneer a vital tool in our community, The Women's Endowment Fund (WEF). Now celebrating its 30th year, they tackled the historical lack of collective support among women for women's causes.

"It created independence for us. It was, and still is, by women, for women," says Lazareck. "To do this through an endowment was perfect. The more we contribute to it, the more support we can provide. You grow it to give it."

Around the same time as helping establish the WEF, her son, Jordan, became a Bar Mitzvah. Marking the date, she established the Jordan Lazareck Special Needs Fund.

Karyn has been a committed volunteer for over forty years, serving on numerous committees and the JFM Board of Directors. Philanthropy seemed natural to her; giving back to the community was instilled in her from childhood.

"All of it started in the home. I grew up seeing firsthand how to give back to the community and how to help strengthen our community," she explains. "My mother was the president of the Rosh Pina Sisterhood, and my grandmother used to canvass for various organizations; my grandfather was an ardent Zionist constantly supporting Israel. Philanthropy and community were all around me."

Her answer to why the JFM became one of the prime vehicles for her philanthropy is quite simple.

"You can donate money somewhere, it gets spent, and then it's gone, which is important in many cases," she clarifies. "But to build something, to plan for the future and help out the community where I could, that's what I was interested in being a part of."

She learned the importance of philanthropy from her mother and grandmother; she now passes these values on to her children and grandchildren. In her eyes, when it comes to giving back, the more, the merrier.

"I always say that it's about the people, the team effort, the group. What we're doing is not about one person and cannot be done alone."

A DEEP SENSE OF COMMUNITY

A MESSAGE FROM OUR Chair & Chief Executive Officer

Looking back at this past year, we have been delighted to see that despite all the changes the world has seen, there is still support from our community, for our community.

As is the case with life, the year presented triumphs and challenges. The Foundation had a terrific year, seeing 66 new funds opened, awarding scholarships to 63 students, and distributing $6.98 million in grants. Just as we have done since 1964, we maintained the stable framework our community knows it can rely upon.

In contrast, this past October, an unimaginable tragedy struck that has shaken our entire global Jewish community to the core.

In the aftermath of the October 7th attack, levels of violence and discomfort rose for many Jewish people. In this time of uncertainty, our Foundation and community banded together, as we have done so many times in our history. The pain this caused for so many families further deepened our sense of community and instilled in us a renewed focus on ensuring a safe and thriving future. We know we must continue to be there for our neighbours, as we have always been.

It has been sixty years since a forward-thinking and community-focused group of individuals planned to cultivate a support system that would ensure their community remained strong for generations to come. Those well-laid plans allow us to be so proactive today.

Today, the JFM has over forty-five hundred funds. Every contribution has played a pivotal role, and in 2024, the JFM will reach an unbelievable milestone: the distribution of over 100 million dollars in grants since our inception, a testament to our donors' care for our future. This care for the future has spanned across generations and will continue to the next. This year and this milestone have led to much reflection about our Founders' contributions. Their foresight and dedication have shaped the JFM into what it is today, and we are honoured to carry on their legacy.

Their legacy created the framework for everything we do as a foundation.

Just as our initial 119 donors saw a need to develop a strong and constant community endowment, we still see that need. Our vision remains one of a growing endowment that enables the community to realize its potential.

Our Foundation began 60 years ago, and the support from its donors has now spanned multiple generations. Thank you! The next 60 years and beyond are in great hands because of you!

Today Rabah,

Dr. Bonnie Cham
Chair, Board of Directors

John Diamond B.A., LL.B.
Chief Executive Officer

FORWARD MOMENTUM

A MESSAGE FROM OUR Chief Financial Officer

The Foundation is extremely grateful for the community's support during 2023 – through the growth of its endowment funds. This growth provides an additional income stream to the community in perpetuity. For example, the contributions of $5.8 million will provide incremental income of $255,000 to the community over the previous year. So, again, growth is not just for growth's sake. The growth represents a healthy community asset that is serving its community.

The Foundation also had a good investment year in 2023. The investment portfolio returned 12.19% net of fees, instrumental to the Foundation breaking through the $160 million barrier in total assets. Some may recall the previous year's negative return in a very negative global market. The observation here is that the year-to-year return is volatile in the short term due to geo-political world events. However, the investment returns are generally positive over the long term, demonstrating prudent stewardship by the Foundation's Investment Committee and Mercer, its investment advisor. While the investment returns may ebb and flow in the short term, the Foundation will measure itself by its performance over the long term and its continued relevance to its constituents. Detailed quarterly investment reports are available on the Foundation's website at www.jewishfoundation.org.

During the year, the Foundation committed to almost $7 million in grants and designated distributions.

Since the Foundation was established in 1964, $98 million in grants and designated distributions have been committed.

Commencing in 2023, the Foundation moved to a trust-based philosophy with its grant recipients. This means grant disbursements occur prior to the commencement of a particular project, rather than the previous method of disbursing only after the project is complete and invoices submitted. Trust agreements are entered into with each recipient, and project invoices must be submitted upon project completion. This philosophy provides the recipient with a more appropriate cash flow over the project's life.

Also, in 2023, the Foundation advanced the timing of its annual distribution of permanently designated and organizational endowment income from December to October. Organizations always welcome the earlier flow of cash.

Finally, the Foundation is committed to increasing its annual distribution rate to 5.0% over the next few years (currently 4.4%). This will put more dollars into the community sooner rather than later, which is a priority for the Board. While additional annual income distribution will have a tendency to temper growth, it is always an exercise of continuous stewardship to achieve an appropriate and reasonable balance between distribution and growth.

EVERYONE LOVES A MATCH

To the sponsors who fund our matching initiatives, to the donors who make gifts, and to the participating organizations who make our community great – Thank you!

MATCHING INCENTIVES FOR ORGANIZATIONS

Our vision at the Jewish Foundation of Manitoba is to create a self-sustaining Jewish community where organizations not only survive but thrive. In 2012, FundMatch was launched as an incentive to encourage the creation and growth of Jewish organizational endowments, providing them with a reliable annual income stream. That income provides the flexibility to use financial resources as the organization sees fit – either to enhance core funding or to utilize the income for a special project.

Building on this momentum, The Berdie & Irvin Cohen (BERVIN) Incentive Fund was established in 2014 to start a new threshold of endowment growth. Once a participating organization reaches $1 million in new money, they have earned the right to withdraw capital from a callable fund. Participating organizations are also required to broaden their relationship with the State of Israel through meaningful initiatives.

The initial phase of FundMatch was supported by generous community members and a commitment from the JFM. BERVIN funding comes from an endowment established as a son's way of honouring the memory of Berdie and Irvin Cohen – a couple remembered for their values, work ethic, upstanding character, and good parenting.

Ten years later, these two initiatives have attracted substantial philanthropic funding, enhancing the long-term viability of the Jewish community. Here are some remarkable highlights:

- In 2012, four organizations participated in FundMatch. That year, they collectively received $45,000 in distribution from their endowments.
- Participating organizations have earned $839,000 in matching dollars to date in addition to gifts made by donors to their endowment funds.
- The endowment fund balances of the organizations taking advantage of these initiatives have grown from $4.302 million to close to $24 million.

Since 2012, the combined distribution has grown substantially from $169,000 to over $1.09 million annually. This means more income is in the hands of organizations.

BAR/BAT MITZVAH ENDOWMENT FUNDS

These funds instill the principles of tzedakah and philanthropy in young people. When a child's fund reaches $750, the Nora & David Kaufman Bar/Bat Mitzvah Fund contributes an additional $250 to bring the fund to the $1,000 level. Once this happens, the fundholder is invited to recommend their annual allocation.

2023 SIGNERS

Mazel Tov to the 2023 class of Endowment Book of Life signers! Each of your commitments and foresight are essential to the longevity and enrichment of our community! Thank you for sharing your legacy with us.

Year after year, the importance of these individuals' commitment remains the same. Endowment Book of Life Signers will leave a financial and historical legacy to our community. Their commitment is a gift to our children, grandchildren, and all of our families' future generations.

We hope you will join us in 2024 when we celebrate both the '23 and '24 classes of signers in person. Details for that celebration will be available in the new year.

Below, you will find a short excerpt from each signer's story. We encourage you to visit bookoflife.jewishfoundation.org to read them in their entirety!

"What stands out most in the story of Sharon and Steven is their enduring love, unwavering commitment, and deep connection to each other. Their recent celebration of their 45th wedding anniversary is a testament to the strength of their bond and their shared life of purpose."

MEMORY OF PHILIP KIVES

"Phil loved to watch his kids play tennis. He would make up an excuse and leave significant business meetings just to watch and cheer them on. Phil was so proud of his family, and he didn't want to miss a thing! He always said his family was his dream team and his greatest accomplishment."
